

Roman Carnelian mounted in 19th century 22kt gold £3,950.00

This antique signet ring features a Roman carnelian intaglio, depicting Cupid riding a lion. The intaglio is set in a 22kt gold shank, and the shank of the ring dates to the 19th century. The detailed carving on the carnelian showcases the fine artistry typical of Roman intaglios, making this ring a significant piece of historical jewellery.

Material and Metalwork:

- The ring is crafted from 22kt yellow gold, indicative of its high purity and luxurious nature.
- The gold shank has a smooth, slightly worn finish, consistent with its age, showcasing a vintage patina.

Intaglio:

- The focal point of the ring is a Roman carnelian intaglio, expertly carved with an intricate depiction of Cupid riding a lion.
- The carving on the carnelian is finely detailed, reflecting the skilled craftsmanship typical of Roman intaglios.
- The intaglio is an oval-shaped gem, flush-set into the gold, creating a seamless integration with the shank.

Shank and Setting:

- The shank is solid and slightly tapered, providing a substantial base that supports the intaglio.
- The setting is minimalistic, allowing the intaglio to be the main focus. The gold bezel tightly secures the carnelian, ensuring its protection.

Symbolism and Artistry:

- The intaglio features Cupid, the Roman god of love, depicted in an active pose riding a lion, which symbolizes power and strength. This combination of motifs suggests a harmonious blend of love and strength.
- The artistic quality of the carving is indicative of the high level of skill possessed by ancient Roman gem engravers.

Historical Significance:

- The ring, with its Roman intaglio and 19th-century shank, represents a significant piece of historical jewelry, merging ancient art with more recent craftsmanship.
- The use of carnelian, a favored stone in Roman times for intaglios, adds to the ring's authenticity and value as an antique.
